GROW YOUR ART Honor THEIR CRAFT

At the heart of Kara Bullock Art School is one simple goal: to help you grow as an artist and create work that feels like YOU. The lessons in this course are designed by our guest artists with great care and thoughtfulness. They are here to teach you new skills, inspire your creativity, and help you find your own artistic voice.

Please read the following guidelines carefully so you understand how to respect the work of our instructors and honor your own growth as an artist.

1 LEARNING COMES FIRST

This course is meant to be a learning and growth experience.

- The best gift you can give yourself is to use what you learn here as a stepping stone to creating original work that feels authentic to you.

- We encourage you to experiment, evolve, and keep moving toward the art that you love — not just replicate what you see.

2 SELLING YOUR ARTWORK

- If your artwork looks very similar to the instructor's demonstration piece (for example, you used the same reference photo and followed their lesson closely), we recommend you keep that piece for yourself — or gift it to a friend or loved one.

- Artwork created from your own imagery, with your own spin and personal style, can absolutely be sold. Originals, prints, and products are all fine when the work reflects your unique vision.

3 TEACHING & SHARING TECHNIQUES

- You may not teach or film lessons that directly copy an instructor's process, reference photo, or exact outcome.

- You may take techniques you've learned here and apply them to your own ideas and imagery — and share those in your own classes or videos.

4 COURSE MATERIALS

- Videos, PDFs, and other course resources are for your personal use only.

- Please do not share, copy, or distribute them in any way. If someone is interested, kindly direct them to enroll in the course.
